UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff, vs. QUENTIN PETER BRUGUIER, JR. Defendant.	4:17-CR-40088-KES  ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR EXTENSION OF TIME TO FILE § 2255 ACTION

Defendant, Quentin Peter Bruguier, Jr., moves for an extension of time to file his 28 U.S.C. § 2255 action. Docket 183. Bruguier argues that due to COVID-19 the facility has been on “controlled movements[.]” Id.

Bruguier has not cited, and the court is not independently aware of, any legal authority that would allow the court to grant Bruguier the relief he is requesting. 28 U.S.C. § 2255 does not authorize a district court to extend the one-year deadline for filing a post-conviction motion under that statute.

In Green v. United States, 260 F.3d 78, 82 (2d Cir. 2001), the Second Circuit Court of Appeals held that “a federal court lacks jurisdiction to consider the timeliness of a § 2255 petition until a petition is actually filed,” because in the absence of an actual petition, “there is no case or controversy to be heard, and any opinion . . . on the timeliness issue would be merely advisory.” Id. (quoting United States v. Leon, 203 F.3d 162, 164 (2d Cir. 2000)); see also United States v. McFarland, 125 F. App’x 573 (5th Cir. 2005); Reed v. United States, 13 F. App'x 311 (6th Cir. 2001); United States v. Anderson, 2007 WL 2973838 (D. Minn. 2007).

But the Second Circuit also held in Green that “[w]here a motion, nominally seeking an extension of time, contains allegations sufficient to support a claim under section 2255, a district court is empowered, and in some instances may be required, . . . to treat that motion as a substantive motion for relief under section 2255.” 260 F.3d at 83. The Court concluded:

Irrespective of when a prisoner files a motion for extension of time, the district court must first determine whether the motion contains allegations supporting a claim for relief under section 2255. If it does, the district court should construe it as such, and then decide whether the motion is timely. If it does not, the district court has no jurisdiction . . . to consider the motion.

Id.

Here, Bruguier's motion for extension of time does not identify any potential grounds for relief that he might raise in a § 2255 petition. As noted in Green, a “motion under section 2255 must ‘specify all the grounds for relief which are available to the movant and of which he has or, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have knowledge and shall set forth in summary form the facts supporting each of the grounds thus specified.’” Id. (citation omitted). Bruguier has not provided any information whatsoever about what his potential grounds for § 2255 relief may be. Thus, the court concludes that even after applying a liberal construction to Bruguier's pro se filing, the present motion for an extension cannot be construed to actually be a § 2255 motion. As a result, after applying Green, the court finds that it lacks jurisdiction over

Bruguier's motion for an extension. If Bruguier files a § 2255 motion, the court will then consider and rule on whether the motion is timely. Thus, it is ORDERED that Bruguier's motion for extension of time (Docket 183) is denied.

DATED January 29, 2021.
